

MARVELOUS MIGI

As someone now professionally obsessed with color and fabric, one of my aesthetic regrets from Laurel's babyhood is that I didn't properly outfit her crib. All the individual bedding component options (and their price tags) quickly overwhelmed me; so Laurel didn't have much else other than a lonely little crib sheet and blanket.

Lucky for busy, budget conscious mamas, there's MiGi. Designed by two former Martha Stewart Living editors, these 4-piece bedding sets include a comforter, bumper, crib sheet, and crib skirt; all tidily and easily packaged in a handled storage bag for $149.99. I especially love the playful yet elegant color palette of the Splash set, which would work for boys or girls (for a definitive girl palette, see the Sweet collection); the pieces are well constructed and finished with lovely details such as embroidery and contrast edging. And if your nursery needs further sprucing, coordinating pieces (e.g., diaper stacker, lamp, mobile, blanket, window valence) are available.
